All women and girls with disability have the right to live free of violence, abuse, exploitation and neglect.

Violence against women and girls with disability is a type of disability and gender discrimination.

Forced and coerced sterilisation is a form of violence against young women with disability.

Anti-violence programs should address the forms of violence that young women and girls with disability experience.
Girls with disability are 3 to 4 times more likely to experience violence than their friends without disability.

1 in 5 women with disability have experienced sexual violence.

The rights of young women and children with disability are protected under international human rights law.

All women and girls with disability have the right to freedom from all forms of violence, abuse, exploitation and neglect.

WHAT IT MEANS

VIOLENCE
Using force or power against another person, group or community, which results in them being hurt, feeling pain or fear. Violence can be physical, emotional, sexual, and psychological, among others. Violence can be committed by an individual, a group, or by the State (a country).

STERILISATION
A medical procedure that removes a person’s capacity to have children.

DISCRIMINATION
Being treated unfairly or differently because of who you are, where you live, what you believe, or because you have a disability.

HUMAN RIGHTS
Rights to freedom, dignity and fairness that all people have, no matter their race, ethnicity, nationality, age, sex, gender, sexuality, disability or political beliefs. Human rights are protected by international law.
HUMAN RIGHTS AND VIOLENCE

Human rights are protected under international law. These rights are described in documents called conventions or treaties. Countries such as Australia can agree to be bound by these laws.

CONVENTION ON THE RIGHTS OF THE CHILD (CRC)

The CRC describes and protects the human rights of children and young people. Check out the “For Youth” page to learn more about your rights:
