Position Statement 3
Participation
We all have the right to equal participation in political, economic, social and cultural life.

Participation requires access to information that is accurate and accessible.

Meaningful participation requires freedom from all forms of violence.

Meaningful participation requires Gender and disability equality.

Definitions on Page 4
Women and girls with disability are often denied the right to participate and make choices about their lives.

Women and girls with disability living in institutions and group homes are often denied information, education and support to participate equally.

Abuse, bullying and discrimination can stop young women and girls with disability from participating.

Women and girls with disability are leading the global push for their human rights to be acknowledged and respected.
WHAT IT MEANS

PARTICIPATION
To make a decision or choose to something after you have been provided with information and support to understand the consequences of making that choice.

EQUALITY
Having access to the same rights and opportunities as everyone else, along with the support to act on those rights and opportunities.

DISCRIMINATION
Being treated unfairly or differently because of who you are, where you live, what you believe, or because you have a disability.

HUMAN RIGHTS
Rights to freedom, dignity and fairness that all people have, no matter their race, ethnicity, nationality, age, sex, gender, sexuality, disability or political beliefs. Human rights are protected by international law.
HUMAN RIGHTS AND PARTICIPATION

Human rights are protected under international law. These rights are described in documents called conventions or treaties. Countries such as Australia can agree to be bound by these laws.

CONVENTION ON THE RIGHTS OF THE CHILD (CRC)

The CRC describes and protects the human rights of children and young people. Check out the “For Youth” page to learn more about your rights:
