About WWDA

Women with Disabilities Australia (WWDA) is the award winning, national Disabled People's Organisation (DPO) for women and girls with all types of disability in Australia. As a DPO, WWDA is managed and run by women with disability, for women and girls with disability. To learn more about WWDA or to find out how you can connect with us go to About Us on WWDA's website.

Aim and objectives

The aim of WWDA is to promote, protect and advance the human rights and freedoms of women and girls with disability in Australia.

The objectives of WWDA are to:

- (a) promote the participation of women with disability in all aspects of social, economic, political and cultural life;
- (b) advocate on issues of concern to women with disability in Australia and internationally; and
- (c) be the national representative organisation for women with disability in Australia by:
 - (i) undertaking systemic advocacy;
 - (ii) providing policy advice;
 - (iii) undertaking research; and
 - (iv) developing information and education resources

Privacy and information

You can provide as little or as much information as you like. Information on your age and location helps us to identify members who may wish to attend forums, events etc in particular regions. We do not require you to disclose information about your disability status, however you can choose to do so if you wish. This can help us to identify members for particular consultations, expert groups etc. All personal data about members is stored securely and confidentially.

For more information on privacy, read our Privacy Policy on the WWDA website.
